Upon hearing the announcement from Alex Jones that he was embarking on a new filmmaking adventure – and later finding out what the film would cover – I decided to conduct my own research into the various subjects that Endgame would discuss. Rather than get the information for the first time from the film, I wanted to see what I could dig up on my own prior to viewing it. The information I found – which is openly available to anyone willing to look – is incredibly sobering, but not all hope is lost. If we live our lives in fear of what the future may bring, we allow ourselves to be defeated. We still have the power to raise awareness among our fellow man, and despite what the elite may believe, they do not have a monopoly on the future.

Awareness of the global elite is spreading like wildfire.

You may have heard Alex say that Endgame only covers a small percentage of the information out there. After watching his excellent film, I can tell you from my own investigation that this is absolutely true. I point this out not because I am criticizing the film, but to drive home the true gravity of our situation.

The subject of Eugenics and population control was the main focus of my research. In August I wrote an article on eugenics covering a short history of the pseudo science, and detailed possible future applications of it. The following is a sampling of some of the other information that I've been able to find detailing a small part of the elite agenda and possible future scenarios.

China as the world model

“Whatever the price of the Chinese Revolution, it has obviously succeeded not only in producing more efficient and dedicated administration, but also in fostering high morale and community of purpose. The social experiment in China under Chairman Mao’s leadership is one of the most important and successful in human history.” — David Rockefeller, The New York Times, August 10, 1973

China, as noted in Endgame, has long been supported by the global elite in its population control policies and tyrannical measures of control.

In 2000, the Rockefeller foundation gave \$2 million to upgrade a drug factory in China which produces the abortion drug RU-486. As the Washington Post reports, the drug has been widely used in China’s population control efforts,

“RU-486 has been a key ingredient in China’s population control strategy for years. Of the estimated 10 million abortions performed annually in China, about half are carried out with RU-486, said Gao Ersheng, director of the Shanghai Institute of Planned Parenthood Research.”

In 1995 China adopted the law on Maternal and Infant Health Care. The law, shaped around Francis Galton’s model of eugenics, is dedicated to “improving the quality of the newborn population.” The law details methods of “educating” the public on the importance of genetics and good marriage.

If a couple is deemed unworthy of childbearing they are either not allowed to marry or are sterilized. Using modern genetic screening, fetuses deemed to be “medically considered inappropriate for reproduction” are terminated.

Population control via one child policies are also enforced in China. The Chinese government has heralded the one child policy as contributing to the reduction of their “carbon footprint”.

Eric G. Swedin, assistant professor at Weber State University, speculates in the May-June 2006 edition of The Futurist that China is likely to be the first to develop “designer babies”, triggering a “eugenics race” between the United States and China. Swedin says,

“Around the world, parents seeking the best opportunities for their children may want to buy biotechnology that gives their children an edge, and we will see the birth of specialized human beings. Moral qualms will be brushed aside, and keeping up with the Chinese will be seen as a patriotic duty.”

Swedin goes on to speculate, like many others in the field of genetics and biotechnology, that a new elite upper class that is able to afford the new technology could arise.

“Before the Enlightenment of the eighteenth century, which promoted the essential equality of every human, people believed that noble blood entitled the aristocracy to rule over the peasants... Genetic enhancement could lead to a new feudal order. If a new aristocracy arises, those people whose parents can afford to provide genetic enhancements will not just be stronger, brighter, and less prone to disease, but will actually have “noble” blood in the form of their new and improved genes.”

A technocratic, genetically enhanced elite

The idea of a new class of elite ruling over a lesser, genetically inferior class is not new. H.G. Wells wrote about it in his book The Time Machine, while thousands of years before him Plato's Republic promoted the idea of elite “Guardians” specifically bred for ruling over the masses. Some warn of its grave dangers, while others promote it as an inevitable, positive development.

Rather than rely on non-technological means of enhancement, advanced technology will be used by the new aristocracy. John Campbell of the University of California writes in his paper The Moral Imperative of Our Future Evolution,

“The costs [of genetic enhancement] will be enormous, far beyond what most people could afford. This has kept our democratic society from appreciating that these possibilities will be used and will be important. However, their feasibility cannot be judged from what the average person will be willing to pay to procreate. What matters are the resources that the most successful generative lines will be able to apply to their goals. A million dollars per conception seems a great underestimate to me for the beings who hold evolution's frontier.”

“We should not imagine that people will just dabble in their evolution. Another generation will fan autoevolution into the all-consuming endeavor of the intellectuals, scientists and economists. The resources of the world probably will suddenly be shifted to this enterprise. Remaining “humans” will realize that they have been displaced from their former privileged status as the masters of destiny.”

John Glad, former Professor of Russian studies, comments on Campbell in his book Future Human Evolution: Eugenics in the Twenty-First Century,

“Campbell’s projection of rapid, small-group-directed evolution is at once heartening and depressing. Greater, even opened, intelligence is awesome to contemplate. On the other hand, how sad it is for those “living fossils” who constitute the mass of humanity – humanity, at least, as we know it today.”

“The two societies projected by H.G. Wells in The Time Machine, one producing material goods and the other, childlike, consuming them, is probably going to arrive sooner than we think, and the childlike creatures will be us.”

Lee Silver, Professor at Princeton University and former senior investigator for Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, writing in Remaking Eden: Cloning and Beyond in a Brave New World, sees a future in which,

“The GenRich—who account for 10 percent of the American population—all carry synthetic genes. Genes that were created in the laboratory....The GenRich are a modern-day hereditary class of genetic aristocrats....All aspects of the economy, the media, the entertainment industry, and the knowledge industry are controlled by members of the GenRich class.”

Another angle on advanced technology taken by the elite is the deliberate dumbing down and domestication of the majority of humanity. A picture emerges of a technologically advanced elite sitting atop an oppressed mass of humanity that fails to benefit from advanced technological and genetic developments.

William Sims Bainbridge, a top figurehead in the Transhumanist movement writes,

“Techniques such as genetic engineering, psychoactive drugs and electronic control of the brain make possible a transformation of the species into docile, fully-obedient, “safe” organisms.”

The future as seen by the CIA and the U.K. Ministry of Defense

Like the new genetic upper class, the CIA and U.K. Ministry of Defense envision a future in which global integration brings inter-communal conflict as borders are erased, and a large percentage of the population lives in poverty while only a tiny elite benefits from globalization. At the moment, the European Union exists and is expanding, the African Union is nearing completion, and the North American Union project is currently underway. Ultimately, as Zbigniew Brzezinski has stated, these “post-national” forms of organization will be foundations for a world governmental structure. The future scenarios identified by Global Trends 2015 and other similar reports can undoubtedly be identified as possible responses to these developments.

The CIA’s 2001 report called Global Trends 2015 outlines trends in technology, globalization, and governance to name a few. The report, as noted by the May-June 2001 edition of The Futurist, includes contributions from the RAND corporation and the Carnegie Endowment (who’s leaders attend the secretive Bilderberg conferences regularly). Global Trends 2015 states,

“The continuing spread of information technology and biotechnology will stimulate more innovation in advanced countries. New medical breakthroughs will improve the health and longevity of the wealthy.”

“Established governments are likely to lose some control over their borders... Corporations and nonprofit organizations will exert more influence on state affairs. Winners and losers in globalization will emerge...”

An alternative to positive globalization is given,

“Pernicious Globalization: Global elites thrive, but the majority of the world’s population fails to benefit from globalization. Internal conflicts increase, fueled by frustrated expectations, inequities, and communal tensions.”

The scenario presented by the U.K Ministry of Defense mirrors Global Trends 2015, with a few twists. The London Guardian reported on the MoD report in April of this year. “The development of neutron weapons which destroy living organs but not buildings ‘might make a weapon of choice for extreme ethnic cleansing in an increasingly populated world’”, the report says.

“‘The middle classes could become a revolutionary class, taking the role envisaged for the proletariat by Marx,’ says the report. The thesis is based on a growing gap between the middle classes and the super-rich on one hand and an urban under-class threatening social order”

“By 2010 more than 50% of the world’s population will be living in urban rather than rural environments, leading to social deprivation and “new instability risks”, and the growth of shanty towns. By 2035, that figure will rise to 60%. Migration will increase. Globalisation may lead to levels of international integration that effectively bring inter-state warfare to an end. But it may lead to “inter-communal conflict” – communities with shared interests transcending national boundaries and resorting to the use of violence.”

Education is the key. Awareness of the global elite is spreading like wildfire. Take an active role in history and do your part in educating others. You don’t have to have the biggest website, be well spoken, or be the best leader. No matter how insignificant your contribution may seem, it makes all the difference in the world.

Endgame: The Rabbit Hole Doesn't End Here – Part 2

“It seems like every new corner we turn, the Rockefellers are already there. And in some cases, they have been there for a long, long time.” — William H. Gates Sr.

If you have watched Alex Jones' Endgame, you know that population reduction has been a leading goal of Rockefeller, Kissinger, and other global elite for many years. You may be wondering; How will the elite fulfill their plans for global population reduction? There are many theories as to how this will be done, and speculation abounds. Race specific bio-weapons, as written in the Project for a New American Century, “...may transform biological warfare from the realm of terror to a politically useful tool.” A report released early this year by the U.K. Ministry of Defense outlining possible future scenarios says that, “The development of neutron weapons which destroy living organs but not buildings ‘might make a weapon of choice for extreme ethnic cleansing in an increasingly populated world.’” Documentation can be shown demonstrating that at this very moment massive population reduction programs are being carried out.

Henry Kissinger's National Security Study Memorandum 200, as noted in Endgame, is a foundational document regarding population reduction plans for the third world.

The 1974 NSSM 200 document cites “Injectable contraceptives for women” as a possible method of population reduction and control. Depopulation, as stated in the document, should be pursued because it would be in the “...economic interests of the United States.”

“Wherever a lessening of population pressures... can increase the prospects for such stability, population policy becomes relevant to resource supplies and to the economic interests of the United States.”

The Rockefeller Foundation and the Population Council, both Rockefeller organizations, have been instrumental in the funding and development of sterilization vaccines. The Rockefeller family has been involved with population control and eugenics since the early 1900's. The Population Council, founded by John D. Rockefeller in 1952, was first headed by Frederick Osborn, who served as the Secretary of the American Eugenics Society.

“Injectable contraceptives for women” have been developed in the years after the infamous NSSM 200.

The Rockefeller family has been involved with population control and eugenics since the early 1900's

In 1989 research was conducted by the National Institute of Immunology in New Delhi India on the use of ‘carriers’ such as Tetanus Toxoid and Diphtheria to bypass the immune system and deliver the female hormone called human chorionic gonadotrophin (hCG). The effect of the hCG hormone was the sterilization of women by causing the body to attack itself. By using four women as test subjects, the research found that multiple doses – around 5 – of the Tetanus toxoid hCG carrier vaccine was required in order for it to effectively raise the level of hCG in their bodies. The research also found that if an alternate carrier such as Diphtheria was used, less doses would be needed to maintain the desired level of hCG.

The Rockefeller Foundation and the Population Council are listed as giving grants for the research.

The aforementioned research paper was carried in the Oxford University Press in 1990, and was titled “Bypass by an alternate ‘carrier’ of acquired unresponsiveness to hCG upon repeated immunization with tetanus-conjugated vaccine.”

Are these plans being implemented right now?

NSSM 200 outlines recommendations as to how to carry out population reduction and control policies. The World Bank, World Health Organization, UNICEF, and donor countries are listed as possible implementation arms.

GAVI (the Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunization), which was founded in 2000, has the goal of vaccinating most of the third world. The member organizations of GAVI include many of the same partners listed in NSSM 200, including the Rockefeller Foundation. Listed on the GAVI website, GAVI partners include: national governments of donor and developing countries, the Bill and Melinda Gates Children’s Vaccine Program, the International Federation of Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Associations (IFPMA), the Rockefeller Foundation, UNICEF, the World Bank Group and the World Health Organization (WHO).

In December of 2000, David Rockefeller and William H. Gates Sr., among others, visited the Rockefeller University campus to take part in a meeting on “Philanthropy in a Global Century”. While there, Gates spoke about his inspiration from Rockefeller in founding GAVI,

“Gates said that ‘Taking our lead and our inspiration from work already done by The Rockefeller Foundation, our foundation actually started GAVI by pledging $750 million to something called the Global Fund for Children’s Vaccines, an instrument of GAVI.’”

He also praised the Rockefeller family’s century of philanthropy, saying, ‘It seems like every new corner we turn, the Rockefellers are already there. And in some cases, they have been there for a long, long time.’”

The targets

The targets of NSSM 200 for population reduction and control included “...countries where there is special U.S. political and strategic interest.” Those named include: India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Nigeria, Mexico, Indonesia, Brazil, the Philippines, Thailand, Egypt, Turkey, Ethiopia and Colombia.

In 1995 the BBC aired a documentary titled “The Human Laboratory”, which covered the use of birth control drugs and vaccines in the third world. The discovery of “contaminated” Tetanus toxoid vaccines and the resulting negative effects on the Philippine population were covered. The documentary was never shown in the United States. A transcript of the program can be seen here.

Contained in the program are the accounts of doctors from the Philippines who found that their Tetanus vaccines were “contaminated” with hCG, resulting in sterility and miscarriages. As the research shown above indicates, these are not contaminants, but rather scientifically crafted.

The following are excerpts from the BBC program:

MARY PILAR VERZOSA: The women would say why is it that the tetanus shots that we’ve been getting have had effects on us? Our fertility cycles are all fouled up, some of the women among us have had bleedings and miscarriages, some have lost their babies at a very early stage. The symptoms could come soon after their tetanus vaccination – some the following day, others within a week's time. For those who were pregnant on their first three or four months the miscarriage was really frightening.

MARY PILAR VERZOSA: I began to suspect that here in the Philippines that's exactly what's happening. They have laced the tetanus toxoid vials with the Beta HCG. The only way I could make sure that they hadn't done that was to examine the vials, and how to get a hold of those vials was going to be a problem. Who was I to collect them from the health centres?

MARY PILAR VERZOSA: Oh boy that was really something when this came out of my fax machine. Report on HCG concentration in vaccine vials. Three out of those four vials registered positive for HCG, so my suspicions are affirmed that here in our country they are not only giving plain tetanus toxoid vaccination to our women, they are also giving anti-fertility.

NARRATOR: Sister Mary was not alone. Many women and doctors reported similar findings. Dr. Vilma Gonzaga became suspicious when she had two miscarriages, both times after receiving the tetanus jab. She is now suing the government since tests showed she had very high levels of antibodies to Beta HCG.

Dr Fays Schrater comments on his suspicions that there is a deliberate campaign to immunise the Philippines with hCG.

DR FAYS SCHRATER: If there is a conspiracy to immunise the women of the Philippines with chorionic gonadotropin rather than tetanus, then it requires the knowledge of some member of a government, or two. It requires the participation of a manufacturer to link the chorionic gonadotropin physically to the tetanus toxoid – you can't just throw it in the vial and expect it to do its work. And it requires that it be mislabelled and that it be shipped then to a centre who knows what's in it and who is going to distribute it in a guise of tetanus vaccine.

Rural populations of the third world have caught on to possible negative effects of vaccination such as sterilization, while their fears are dismissed as "rumors" and "myths" by the mainstream press. Often, those reassuring that the vaccines are safe are the very organizations listed in NSSM 200 as partners in population reduction and control efforts. A 2006 press release from UNICEF (United Nations Children Fund), which is involved with vaccinating many third world countries, quotes the Assistant Project Officer for Health in Ethiopia's Southern Nations, Tersit Assefa,

"In other places, women of this age often stay away," said Ms. Tersit. "All sorts of misguided rumours go round that the injections will sterilize them or harm them in some way. But here, the village elders are on board. They are here, encouraging the women to come along."

Nigerians have also become suspicious of vaccines. CBS news reported in 2004 that the Nigerian state of Kano was resisting Polio vaccines on grounds that the injections would render the female population infertile.

"In September, Shekarau suspended participation in a global immunization program on the grounds that local scientists had discovered traces of a hormone in foreign-made vaccines that they feared could make girls infertile.

Some local Islamic leaders accused the Nigerian federal government of being part of a U.S. plot to kill off Muslims with the vaccines.

The WHO insisted the vaccines were safe, and urged that vaccinations resume to stave off a resurgence of the paralyzing disease.”

Thailand, another target of NSSM 200, is ripe with stories of miscarriages and sterilization. According to the local population of the Akha, pregnant women are forced to receive the vaccine in order to get ID cards for their children. The vaccine often results with violent miscarriages. In the video below, Matthew McDaniel, a human rights activist who has been working with the Akha people of Thailand, speaks with two Akha women about the forced Tetanus vaccine and the resulting miscarriages.

The third world populations, which are largely out of sight and out of the minds of a large portion of the west, are taking the brunt of the global elite’s population reduction plans.
